Before You Begin

What this companion is, and who it is for

This is a companion to The Book of the Temple of Mercury. It is never required. The Book works on its own, with a notebook, a pen, and honesty. This companion is for the Scribe who wants to know what the five names of the Heart are, where their colors came from, and how to work with them directly, through the system the Temple grew from: Dyadic Neo-Enochian Magick.

It is written for two readers at once. If you already know the Enochian system of John Dee and Edward Kelley, the next section tells you what was changed and why. If you are new, read straight through; nothing here assumes more than patience and a willingness to count letters carefully.

THE SYSTEM IN ONE PARAGRAPH

Dyadic Neo-Enochian is a way of building a working rather than petitioning for one. You choose four directional pairs of forces, called dyads, that describe a transformation: where it happens, how it moves, where it starts, and where it ends. Those four choices tell you which pieces of the Enochian Great Table to take. You assemble the pieces into a single new grid, derive the names of the angels it contains, speak them in a fixed prayer, and deliver a charge. The meaning of the working is encoded in its structure. The Operator does not ask; the Operator builds, and powers what was built.

WHAT YOU WILL FIND HERE

The first part explains the system and the changes it makes to the traditional one. The second part teaches the procedure: reading the Table, grafting, deriving names, and assembling the prayer. The third part gives four complete workings, one for each name of the Heart around AONT, built on a single idea: the written word becoming real. The reference tables at the end are everything you need to build any working of your own.

The full system, including a large book of recipes for protection, finance, self-development, and love, lives at szk5334.github.io/Enochian. This companion leaves the recipes there and keeps only what the Temple needs.

For the Experienced

What changed from the traditional system, and why

If you have worked with the Watchtowers in the Golden Dawn manner, most of the material will be familiar: the Great Table, the Tablet of Union, the Great and Calvary Crosses, the Kerubic and Servient angels, the Seniors and Kings. What is new is how the pieces relate to one another, and what the Operator does with them.

SPIRIT MOVES TO THE CENTER. Tradition treats the first column of the Tablet of Union, EHNb, as Spirit. This system places Spirit in the central column, AONT. The reason is structural. With Spirit at the center, the Tablet's elemental attributions (rows Air, Water, Earth, Fire; columns Air, Water, Spirit, Earth, Fire) match the Servient section of every Subangle exactly. That single mirror is where the whole system began. It shows the Tablet of Union to be an incomplete Subangle, missing its top two rows, and the Operator supplies them.

COLORS AND ELEMENTS ARE READ FROM THE TABLET OF UNION. Each Watchtower corresponds to one row of the Tablet of Union, and each Subangle position to one column. The Red Watchtower takes EXARP, the row of Air; White takes HCOMA, Water; Black takes NANTA, Earth; Green takes BITOM, Fire. The columns follow suit: EHNb for Red, XCAI for White, RMTO for Black, PAAM for Green. So in this system Red is Air, White is Water, Black is Earth, and Green is Fire. This is the correspondence the Temple uses, and the one used throughout this companion.

EVERY FORCE IS A MOTION. Colors and elements are not treated as static qualities but as forces in motion, and they are always used in pairs: an Outer force that provides the context, and an Inner force that emerges within it. The pair is called a dyad. Every working is four dyads.

GRAFTING REPLACES SELECTION. Traditionally, one works with the angels of an existing Subangle. Here a new Subangle is assembled for each working: the Calvary Cross of one Subangle (the Host) with columns taken from two others (the Initial and Terminal grafts), selected by an elemental dyad. The result is a Subangle that exists nowhere on the Table, built to carry exactly one intention.

THE OPERATOR IS THE SOURCE. The two rows missing from the Tablet of Union, the Kerubic row and the Commanding row, correspond to Divine Intent and Divine Compelling Will. You supply them. The working runs on your intent and will, directed through the structure. There is no supplication anywhere in the system; this is the same stance the Temple calls

Divine Birthright.

THE WHOLE CIRCUIT IS NAMED. Beyond the familiar angels, each working names Archangelic and Mercurial forms of the Kerubic, Ruling, and Servient angels, and four Cacodaemons: the consequences of intent and of action, and the reactions to those consequences. The Cacodaemons are not enemies to be banished. They are the balancing parts of the circuit, and naming them is part of working honestly with cause and effect.

REVERSALS ARE NO LONGER REQUIRED. Earlier versions of this system paired every working with a reversal designed to undo it. That requirement is gone. A reversal was never truly an undoing; it was always just another working, layered on top of the first. And when something goes wrong, the useful question is not how to get back to where you were, but where you actually want to be now. So the response to a working that has gone astray is a new working aimed at that destination, cast on top. The Temple says the same thing in its own language: answer the page, and write the next one.

NO TIMING IS REQUIRED. The machinery works when you work it. Planetary days and hours, including the Temple's own calendar, may strengthen your focus, but they are not part of the mechanism.

I The Four Dyads

VERY working has the same shape: something changes into something else, through a particular mode, within a governing context. Each of those four parts is one dyad.

I → T, through E, within H.

H, THE HOST. The governing environment in which everything happens. It supplies the Calvary Cross of the new Subangle, the Watchtower whose God Names, King, and Seniors are called, and the prefixes. The Host does not change during the working.

E, THE ELEMENTAL. How the change propagates: through thought, feeling, structure, or action. It selects the Servient Angel, and so decides which columns the grafts contribute and which Tablet of Union names are called.

I, THE INITIAL GRAFT. Where the transformation begins: the raw material, the current state, what you are working with.

T, THE TERMINAL GRAFT. Where it ends: the achieved state, what you are becoming.

READING A DYAD

A dyad is written Outer → Inner. The Outer force is the context or container; the Inner force is what emerges within it. White → Red means that within a purifying context, manifestation is emerging. In words, a dyad is said Inner of Outer: White → Red is Red of White, and Air → Water is Water of Air. Reversing the pair makes a different force entirely: Red → White means that within manifestation, purification is emerging.

H, I, and T are alchemical dyads, made of colors. E is an elemental dyad, made of elements. The colors decide what transforms; the elements decide how.

THE ALCHEMICAL COLORS

The four colors are the stages of the alchemists' Great Work, each a force in motion.

BLACK dissolves, clears, and breaks down. It reveals foundations and confronts shadow.

WHITE purifies, clarifies, and stabilizes. It separates essence from dross.

GREEN grows, generates, and connects. It is the living expansion of what has taken root.

RED manifests, completes, and claims. It is embodiment and sovereignty.

As the Outer color, a force governs the whole context of the working. As the Inner color, it names the quality emerging within that context.

THE ELEMENTAL MODES

AIR works through thought, perception, words, and communication.

WATER works through feeling, relationship, intuition, and flow.

EARTH works through structure, material conditions, and the physical world.

FIRE works through will, action, and direct force.

Black through Fire and Black through Water both dissolve something, but very differently: the first breaks things apart by decisive action, the second through feeling and release.

II Reading the Table

HE Great Table is a grid of letters received by Dee and Kelley in 1587, divided into four quadrants by the Black Cross, a central row and column. The letters of the Black Cross, set out on their own, form the Tablet of Union.

Every Subangle's letters are given in the reference tables at the end of this companion. You will not need the full Great Table to build a working, though it is good to keep it in sight.

III Grafting

ITH your four dyads chosen, you assemble a new Subangle. Work on paper, slowly, and check each letter. A grafted Subangle is five columns and six rows.

- FIND THE HOST. Look up the Subangle named by the Host dyad. Copy its Calvary Cross: all of row 2, and all of column 3.
- FIND THE SERVIENT POSITION. The Elemental dyad names a row and a column of the Servient section. Its Outer element is the row: Air row 3, Water row 4, Earth row 5, Fire row 6. Its Inner element is the column: Air column 1, Water column 2, Earth column 4, Fire column 5. That cell is where the Servient Angel's name begins.
- GRAFT THE INITIAL COLUMNS. From the Initial Subangle, take two columns, rows 1 and 3 through 6 only, as set by the Inner element of E: Air, columns 1 and 2; Water, columns 2 and 4; Earth, columns 4 and 5; Fire, columns 5 and 1. Place them in the same columns of the new Subangle.
- GRAFT THE TERMINAL COLUMNS. From the Terminal Subangle, take the other two columns, rows 1 and 3 through 6 only: Air, columns 4 and 5; Water, columns 5 and 1; Earth, columns 1 and 2; Fire, columns 2 and 4. Place them in the same columns.
- ADD THE PREFIXES. Both sets come from the Host. Down the left side, beside rows 1, 3, 4, 5, and 6, write the Tablet of Union row of the Host's Watchtower, its Outer color, center letter first: Red a e x r p; White o h C m a; Black n n a T a; Green t b i o m. Across the top, above columns 1, 2, 4, and 5, write the Tablet of Union column of the Host's Subangle position, its Inner color: Red e h n b; White x C a i; Black r m T o; Green p a m.

The grafted Subangle is now complete. Read it once more against its three sources before you go on; a single wrong letter changes every name after it.

A WORKED EXAMPLE

Here is the graft for XCAI, the Water of Air, the second of the four workings in this companion. H is Red → White, E is Air → Water, I is White → Green, and T is Red → White.

The Host is the upper right Subangle of the Red Watchtower; the Initial is the lower right Subangle of the White Watchtower; the Terminal is again the upper right Subangle of the Red Watchtower, the same Subangle as the Host. The Elemental, Air to Water, puts the Servient letter at row 3, column 2. Its Inner element is Water, so the Initial gives columns 2 and 4, and the Terminal gives columns 5 and 1.

HOST					INITIAL					TERMINAL
p	a	L	a	m	a	T	a	p	a	p	a	L	a	m

What each source Subangle contributes

Set the Host's Calvary Cross in place, drop the Initial columns and the Terminal columns into the same positions they came from, and add the prefixes: a e x r p down the left, for the Host's Red Watchtower, and x C a i across the top, for its White position.

Names and the Prayer

ACH working calls three sets of names: those of the Host's Watchtower, those of the Tablet of Union, and those derived from the grafted Subangle itself.

FROM THE WATCHTOWER

The Host's Watchtower gives its three God Names, King, six Seniors, and Mighty Prince. These never change for that Watchtower, and are listed in the reference tables.

FROM THE TABLET OF UNION

The Elemental dyad gives three names. The Archangel of Archangels is the center column read from the Outer element's row: AONT for Air, ONTA for Water, NTAO for Earth, TAON for Fire. The Ruling Archangel is the Inner element's column, read from the Outer element's row: for Air to Air, EHNB. The Servient Archangel is the Outer element's row, read from the Inner element's column, with the center letter kept in the middle: for Air to Air, EXARP.

FROM THE GRAFTED SUBANGLE

Every name is derived from the grafted Subangle exactly as you assembled it. Some older recipes also show an adjusted Subangle, rotated so the Servient letter sits in the corner, as an aid to reading. Rotating the grid changes the Prince, the Summoning Angel, and the Commanding Angel, so do not derive names from it; the grafted Subangle governs. Rows and columns below are those of the grafted Subangle, and S marks the Servient position.

PRINCE (5). Row 2 column 2, row 1 column 3, row 2 column 4, row 3 column 3, row 2 column 3.

SUMMONING ANGEL (6). Column 3, read down.

COMMANDING ANGEL (5). Row 2, read across.

KERUBIC ANGEL (4). Row 1, starting in S's column, reading right, skipping column 3, wrapping from column 5 to column 1.

SERVIENT ANGEL (4). S's row, starting at S, reading right in the same way.

RULING ANGEL (5). The row 1 letter in S's column, then S, then down S's column, wrapping from row 6 to row 3, until there are five letters.

ARCHANGELIC FORMS. Kerubic: the left prefix of row 1, plus the Kerubic Angel. Ruling: the top prefix of S's column, plus the Ruling Angel. Servient: the left prefix of S's row, plus the Servient Angel.

MERCURIAL FORMS. Kerubic: insert the row 1, column 3 letter as the third letter. Ruling: insert the row 2 letter of S's column as the second letter. Servient: insert the column 3 letter of S's row as the third letter.

CACODAEMONS (3). Kerubic Regent: the Archangelic Kerubic prefix plus the first two letters of the Kerubic Angel. Kerubic Rooted: that prefix plus its last two letters. Servient Regent and Rooted: the same, with the Servient prefix and Servient Angel.

THE PRAYER

The prayer has a fixed shape, opening and closing with the two circuits: the Kerubic, touching the world above, and the Servient, touching the world below.

After the prayer, deliver the charge: the plain statement of what the working is to do. The prayer assembles the machinery; the charge tells it what to do.

Practice

THE machinery holds the pattern. You power it. These are the practical rules that let it run cleanly.

PRONUNCIATION. Enochian was received in English, and mostly follows English. Add a light "uh," "eh," or "ah" between consonants. Pause slightly between repeated letters. Voice a capital letter as its own syllable. V and U are the same letter, both said "oo."

SETUP. At best, keep the Great Table in sight; at least, the grafted Subangle in front of you. Anything else, from candles to posture, is support for your attention, not part of the mechanism.

REPETITION. Because the intention lives in the structure, repeating a working strengthens it without drift. If it is active, repetition adds charge; if it has faded, repetition wakes it.

EMOTIONAL TRANSMUTATION. In the first session of a working, while intention is fresh, you may charge it with Emotional Transmutation, as the Temple describes. In later repetitions, use the machinery alone, so that your mood on a given day does not blur what was encoded.

THE SIGIL. A working may be condensed into a sigil drawn from the 24 letters used to derive its names: the three prefixes used, the four Kerubic letters of row 1, the five letters of row 2, the Calvary spine, the Servient row, and the rest of the Servient column. Combine their shapes by hand until one shape remains.

LAYERING. Cast one working at a time, and give it a few days to a week before adding another. If a working goes somewhere you did not intend, do not look for a way back; decide where you want to be now, and cast that on top.

WORKING FOR OTHERS. Possible, with their consent, but less potent than working for yourself. Often the better gift is to teach them.

TRACKING. The system does not announce itself. Record every working in the Book: the date, the four dyads, the charge, and why. Reread, and note what arrived and how, the misses as faithfully as the arrivals.

VI

The Word Made Real

ROUND AONT, the still point, stand four names: EHNB, XCAI, RMTO, and PAAM. On the Tablet of Union each heads its column in the row of Air, and each is Air joined to one element. The four workings in this part give each of them a working of its own, and all four are built on the same idea, the idea at the center of the Temple: the written word becoming real.

THE DESIGN

Each working pairs one name of the Heart with its own place on the Table. The Initial and Terminal grafts are the same in all four; the Host and the Elemental change with the name.

E: THE NAME ITSELF. Each name of the Heart is Air joined to one element, and that pairing is the Elemental: Air → Air for EHNB, Air → Water for XCAI, Air → Earth for RMTO, Air → Fire for PAAM. Because the Outer element is always Air, every prayer calls AONT as Archangel of Archangels. And because the Elemental is the name, each working calls its own name of the Heart as Ruling Archangel.

H: EACH NAME'S PLACE IN THE WATCHTOWER OF AIR. The Host is always in the Red Watchtower, the Watchtower of Air, at the Subangle of the name's own element: Red → Red, Red of Red, for EHNB; Red → White, White of Red, for XCAI; Red → Black, Black of Red, for RMTO; Red → Green, Green of Red, for PAAM. Every working therefore calls the Watchtower of Air's God Names, King, and Seniors, and carries a e x r p down its left side.

I: WHITE → GREEN. Within clarity, growth emerges: a weighed and honest word, beginning to take root. It is where the Temple's Casting begins, with Weigh It.

T: RED → WHITE. Within manifestation, clarity emerges: what was written becomes real, settled, and true, a fact rather than a hope.

The word is the same in all four workings. What changes is the name that carries it, and the house it is spoken in. Each may be repeated as often as you like.

IN THE TEMPLE

Cast these in the Synthesis. Walk the Pillar, speak the Descending Invocation, recite the prayer, and deliver the charge. Then write the charge in the Book, sign it, and write one step you will take toward it. The working carries the word; you walk the bridge.

VII

EHNb, the Air of Air

The word made real through clarity.

USE CASE

Use it to untangle a problem and think straight: before writing through something knotted, before a decision, or when the words will not come out right.

THE CHARGE

What I write is clear, and what is clear becomes real. The tangle loosens on the page; I think straight, and I say what I mean. What I mean stands up in the world, plain and true, exactly as written.

VIII

XCAI, the Water of Air

The word made real through feeling given words.

USE CASE

Use it to learn what you actually feel and want, and to turn a heavy feeling into fuel: before emotional transmutation, before an honest conversation, or when something in you has no words yet.

THE CHARGE

What I feel finds its words, and the words I find become my life.
The weight in me turns to fuel. The true want beneath it is named, and what is named takes form. My heart speaks honestly on the page, and the world answers in kind.

THE CHARGE

What I write takes shape. The plan on the page becomes the next step, and the next step becomes the building. My words lay foundations that hold, and what I design stands in the world, measured, sound, and real.

X PAAM, the Fire of Air

The word made real through declaration and intent.

USE CASE

Use it to commit, to start, and to say what you want out loud: before a launch, a declaration, or any beginning you have been putting off.
